Waveland phone flap continues: contract awarded to employee

BY RICHARD MEEK

When the City of Waveland was forced to change its cellular phone carrier because Alderman Jay Fleuriot was an agent for Cellular South, another city employee became the beneficiary.

The city in May signed a contract for its cellular service with Century Cellnet, a carrier that serves the Mississippi Gulf Coast. The agent listed on the contract is Linda Thomas, co-owner of Cellular Phones Unlimited in Waveland with Waveland police officer Reggie Smith. Smith is also a Century Cellnet agent.

City attorney Ronnie Artigues Jr. said the contract with Thomas may be a conflict because of Smith's involvement, but is the "lesser of two" conflicts.

The State Ethics Commission ruled in April, at Artigues' request, that the city would be in violation if it renewed its contract with Cellular South since Fleuriot was an agent, even though the city was not one of Fleuriot's customers nor did he receive any remuneration.

Artigues said the dilemma is similar with Smith, and that under the Ethics in Government Act, no city employee or relative of an employee may benefit from doing outside business with the city. However, Artigues said he believes Waveland is covered under a provision that allows for an exemption "when such goods and services are reasonably available from two or fewer sources."

Century Cellular and Cellular South are the only two cellular phone carriers serving the area.

Artigues said he is requesting an opinion regarding Cellular Phones Unlimited from the Ethics Commission.

"As I read the exemption, I think we are covered," Artigues said. "The city has to be allowed to do business with one (of the phone companies)."

"I see no need to change."

Waveland Mayor John Mason, who has been at odds with Fleuriot over several issues recently, said the city "had no other choice" other than to sign a contract with Thomas.

"What are we going to do when we have one other company to do business with?" he said.

However, Mason admitted when asked that it may have been an error in judgement to contract with Thomas, and that the best avenue may have been to contact Century Cellular directly and request an agent with no ties to the area.

It was an idea Fleuriot also endorsed.

Beach project to force cutbacks

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis may have to scrap plans to build a new senior citizens' center and baseball complex and stop allocating funds to Save Our Children, Mayor Eddie Favre said Monday.

The mayor said such actions may be necessary if the city has to foot the bill alone for a $700,000 beach project downtown. Other options the city may have to pick from, Favre says, are dropping the beach project altogether or drastically scaling it back.

City officials budgeted only $250,000 this fiscal year for the beach project. Favre has been to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors in hopes of getting some financial help there, but came away with nothing more than best wishes.

In a meeting last week, board members said if the city could get Coast Transit Authority

Bay Council approves new subdivision; defers action on second, bed and breakfast

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis City Council approved a major new subdivision Tuesday, but deferred action on another, and put off voting on a proposed bed and breakfast establishment.

Council approved plans for "The Oaks" subdivision off Dunbar Avenue, between Boardman Street and Melody Lane. But construction on that 30-site subdivision apparently won't start for months.

"We'd be fools to start construction. We'd be digging holes and wallowing around in mud," said engineer Dennis Stieffel, representing the sub-division's developers, Life-styles 2000.

Although the developers want to put off building homes until the city installs a new drainage canal in the area, Stieffel urged city approval of the preliminary subdivision plat Tuesday night. He said project backers have only until July 28 to fulfill a contract for purchase of the property.

Drainage worries prompted a number of citizens to City Hall meetings in the last couple of months concerning The Oaks development. In addition, citizens were upset that original plans for the development would have required significant variances in lot size requirements.

There were no vocal opponents to the plans on hand

Tuesday, however. The developers have redesigned their layout to meet city code requirements, and have promised that once their subdivision is in place, existing drainage troubles actually will be eased.

New light

Bay St. Louis City Council member Thomas Favre has been insisting for several years that a traffic signal is needed at Washington Street and Highway 90. Tuesday night, he commented on the fact that it's finally been installed, although it is yet to be activated. "The red light is looking good. People are stopping already -- and it's not even on," he said. Highway Department officials say it should be in service by Aug. 1. The lights at Main Street and Highway 90 are also being replaced to improve traffic flow, and those lights should be operational by Aug. 1 as well, officials said. (Echo staff photo by Richard Meek)

In Memoriam

VESTIL BLACK POYADOU
On Your Birthday
July 16 & 17, 1995

We know you're gone, but it's so hard to face it day by day. You were still young and full of life, why were you taken away? Sometimes the Good Lord seems so cruel, but who are we to say why he does the things he does for all of us each day.

Be blessed us with families and puts children in our care, and then one day he takes them away and leaves our hearts so bare!

We do know that he loves us, and watches over us with care, but we don't know why he gives us such pain beyond compare.

And tho' he took Black from us, we know with all our hearts, he'll keep him safe and tend his needs while we are all apart!

So keep your faith in God, dear ones, no matter what's in store. He'll bless you all and see you through each and every door!

We love you, Brother.

Block party favored by mayor

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Plans for a July 29 block party on Beach Boulevard raised eyebrows Tuesday night at Bay St. Louis City Council.

Mayor Eddie Favre said he plans to issue a permit for the festivities, despite council's reluctance to endorse the party.

The 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. party hopefully is a precursor to resurrection of the annual "Beachfront Festival," Favre said. He described the upcoming party as a family-oriented affair, featuring bands, food, crafts and activities for children.

Only the block of Beach Boulevard between Hancock Bank and the Fire Dog Saloon will be closed, said the mayor, leaving motorists with access to Main and Court streets off Beach Boulevard.

The event is being co-sponsored by the Fire Dog Saloon, Tortilla Bay and Dan B's, council was told. The trio plan to pay for police security and will be responsible for clean-up afterwards.

Council was not enthused, however, even after Favre noted the event should draw a number of people to the downtown commercial area, benefiting sales at other local businesses.

Council president Tad Black said allowing consumption of alcohol at the 12-hour party could lead to trouble. "Temperatures do flare," said Black. "If something does happen, it's their responsibility to get it back under control."

Favre said while the block will be closed to traffic for 12 hours, the party probably won't get underway until noon and will stop at 8 p.m. or 9 p.m., to ready the roadway for reopening.

In response to a question

Southern Women's Club to meet

The Southern Women's Club will meet today at the Gulfport Women's Club at 9:30 a.m.

A new member coffee is scheduled for Oct. 19.

The monthly donation will go to Habitat for Humanity. Money will be collected for this cause. Volunteers are also needed.

The next meeting will be August 10 at 9:30 a.m. at the Center for Women's Health in Long Beach.

from Black, Favre said the city's open container law (which forbids public consumption of alcohol) will be waived during the event, but only in the one block at issue.

Black also warned that the party shouldn't generate loud music late at night. Favre said he hasn't gotten any request for the bands to relocate elsewhere outdoors after the block party shuts down at 10 p.m.

Meanwhile, council member Charles Scianna said the traffic detour should begin at De Montluzin Street, routing vehicles to Second and Union streets to reach Beach Boulevard.

Favre said he'd consider that routing. He also said while council customarily is asked to approve permits for such events, council's blessing is not required legally. "...That's fine, I'll be glad to issue the permit," said Favre, when it was apparent a majority of council was not going to back it.

In other action Tuesday, council agreed to allocate $1,311 to help publicize the Oct. 6 and Oct. 7 "Place of Art" festivities locally.

The city's allocation will pay for five billboards to promote the event a month in advance.

In another matter, council again condemned the unsightly pileup of used furniture and appliances around town. As in the past, however, council was without a solid solution to the problem.

Tuesday, Black said the problem is getting worse, not better, as more and more residents dump refuse along city sidewalks and rights-of-way. That, said Black, is illegal littering.

"This stuff is catching, man," said Black as council members agreed the situation is worsening.

Mayor Eddie Favre said the public should be urged not to dump junked furniture and appliances behind the local Goodwill store. He and Scianna complained that had happened over the weekend, leaving Goodwill with a mountain of unuseable junk.

"It's a sign of prosperity," council member James Thrifley quipped. "People are buying new furniture."

School board meeting surprisingly quiet

BY RICHARD MEEK
A predicted explosive school board meeting turned out to be a fizzle Tuesday night.

It was expected the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board would address the volatile issue of reinstating the junior high school, which has been merged with the high school for the upcoming school year. However, the board discussed the issue in executive session, and according to several sources, when it was apparent there were not enough votes to push the issue through, the idea was tabled.

Board President Linda Penrose reported "no action" was taken during executive session when the open meeting resumed. The board would have had to vote on reinstating the junior high in open session.

In February, the board voted 3-1 to merge the two schools. The no vote virtually kills the separate junior high school, although superintendent Paul Tisdale does not rule out any possibility.

"No decision has been made," he said. "I would not be surprised to see the issue come up at the next meeting (scheduled for July 26 at 6:30 p.m.)."

"But there may not be enough of support and a motion may never be made."

Tisdale added that if the board did vote to scrap the merger, "then I would line up (the separate junior high)."

"It's a matter of logistics more than anything else," he said. "It would create some degree of discomfort. Some teachers are wondering who their supervisor will be."

"I thought the matter was settled (in February)."

The fate of administrator James Baldree also remains in doubt. The board had voted in February, at Tisdale's recommendation, not to renew Baldree's contract. He was the junior high principal at the time.

However, Baldree appealed, and despite an independent hearing officer's finding that Tisdale acted appropriately, the board voted to rehire Baldree. At a board meeting last week, Penrose endorsed a move to discard the merger idea and for Tisdale to place Baldree as junior high principal.

Now, with the junior high apparently scrubbed, Tisdale must find an appropriate position for Baldree. Speculation has been that Baldree will eventually land as assistant principal at Bay High School. He is currently helping out at Bay High School but not as assistant principal.

"(Baldree) remains in limbo," Tisdale said.

In other matters, the board voted to advertise for bids for a new track at Joe D. McCullough Tiger Stadium. The board heard a presentation from Phil Sutton of Southwest Recreational Industries, Inc., in Houston, concerning costs, types of tracks, and project management.

Sutton estimated the cost to be approximately $200,000, although he stressed it was just an estimate. Board members have targeted winter for the project, which could take up to three months to complete.

Richardson rulings: 'unclear who won'

BY RICHARD MEEK
An independent hearing officer rendered a mixed bag of findings in regards to the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District and special education student Lizzie Richardson.

Hearing officer David Walker, a professor at the University of Southern Mississippi, ruled the district did not "fully carry out" Richardson's Individualized Educational Plan (IEP) for the 1992-93 school year. Additionally, Walker ruled the district did not "adequately train its personnel to carry out" Richardson's 1993-94 and 94-95 IEP.

However, he also ruled the district did adequately meet Richardson's IEP for the same two years.

Walker also recommended the district provide occupational therapy to Richardson, with the amount and length to be determined by an IEP committee.

"It's hard to say who won," said Sherry Ponder, Special Education Director for the Bay-Waveland schools.

"It's not that clear," she said. Richardson, who is autistic, recently completed fourth grade at Bay Middle School, where she was an honor roll student.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

It is great to read how the 1995 Summer Reading Program, sponsored by the Hancock County Library System, broke records in the number of youngsters in attendance.

Just think, a total of 642 children registered for the reading program at the three library branches.

The youngsters read on an average of 11 books each. Sadly to say, there are many adults in Hancock County who have never read a total of 11 books in their lifetime.

The programs at the library sites Bay St. Louis, Kiln and Waveland, drew a total of 1,717 persons to attended the various summer programs.

It is great we have such a fine library system, and it continues to improve each day.

The recent renovation of the main library in Bay St. Louis has increased activity at its facility and will continue to increase.

Our library system has come a very long way, and I am sure will continue to move forward as we reach the 21st Century.

I am sure we will be looking at other expansions in the system in the very near future. This will be necessary to continue the excellent service to our citizens.

It is good our youths are receiving exposure to our libraries, as it is something they will cherish throughout their lives.

When was the last time you visited the library? You may be surprised at the additional items our library now has to offer.

At one time one only thought about borrowing books from a library. One can still check out books from our library system, but there are many other items, even fishing tackle for youngsters.

The library staff, trustees and all volunteers should be commended for the fine job they do day after day, every year.

Keep up the good work.

While on the subject of the library, a group I feel really needs commending is the dozen individuals who participated in the Hancock County Adult Education Program and recently received GED certificates and diplomas.

The educational program, which is funded through the Training Partnership Act, would not be successful without the many volunteers who work on a one-to-one basis with those seeking a GED. They need really to be thanked for their contributions to the program.

If you do not have a high school diploma and are interested in working towards receiving one, contact our library system.

Many doors are closed to a person in today's world without a college degree, above all to those without a high school diploma.

The threat of and thundershowers each evening reminds us of the fact that we are now in mid-summer.

Just think, schools will be open once again within a month.

I know this is not a thrill for most youngsters, as it sure was not for me many decades ago when I was a lad.

School opening will be a good thing for many parents, too.

Parents and youngsters will have to reset their schedules to a more regular basis when school opens.

It is not like summer activities, and it really doesn't matter if one goes to the beach, park, or ballfield a few minutes late.

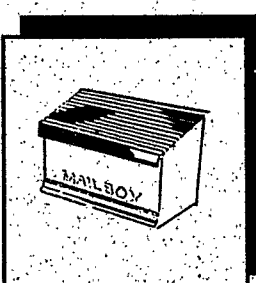

Schools run on a regular basis, and the bell rings at the same time each morning.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Former school employee feels Mr. Baldree should retain job

Dear Editor:

This letter is in regards to the editorial that was written about Mr. James Baldree in your Thursday, July 13 edition. I will also be courageous enough to sign my name.

As a former employee of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District I was fortunate enough to work for this man who is one of the most caring people I have encountered. I think it was degrading to Mr. Baldree for someone to try and take all the dedicated years he has given to the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School district as an educator.

Mr. Baldree has always had the children's welfare as his first priority. He went to extreme lengths and created all sorts of ways to educate the children in his school far beyond the textbooks.

He's one of the most caring people who can associate with all levels of life. Mr. Baldree's feelings for his staff and children has always been a priority to him.

Yes, Mr. Baldree and Mrs. Penrose have always had a close working relationship; you could always count on Mrs. Penrose to attend events at the school in the capacity as a parent. She saw how dedicated Mr. Baldree was to the children and the school system of the community; this is why she has stood up for what she believes is right for him and the children of that school district.

Let's give this man his job back.

Respectfully yours,
Theresa Peterson

Fund established for destroyed home

Dear Editor:

On Saturday, July 8, my mother's home caught fire and was heavily damaged, all personal possessions were destroyed, and the home is uninhabitable.

Efforts to contact the Red Cross have proven to be futile as we have not received any response. Although a meeting had been set for Thursday, July 13 with the Hancock County Community Action Agency (HCCAA), there has still been no financial aid established.

As there was no insurance coverage for the property, my sister, Debbie McNeil and I are seeking assistance from organizations throughout the community.

We would be grateful for any consideration with regards to this request and appreciate any contribution or donation that may be made. A special relief fund has been established with Hancock Bank entitled "Terrell Fire Relief Fund."

Please make any consideration payable to the following:

Terrell Fire Relief Fund, Hancock Bank, Account #010310271 or James and Betty Terrell, P.O. Box 448, Pearlington, MS 39572.

Sincerely,
Anthony McNeil

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Charles Evers in the state Legislature?

Viewed from the historical perspective that Evers was the bane of segregationists two decades ago, so feared by whites that in 1971 his candidacy for governor triggered a record white turnout, the idea of his being a state legislator is incomprehensible.

But it may well happen. Evers, brother of the martyred Medgar Evers, and himself a civil rights hero back in the 1960s-1970s, is running for the House District 85 seat which includes his home county of Jefferson along with Claiborne County.

Here's a real zinger: he's already the Republican, yes, the Republican, nominee in the general election. His Democratic opponent in November is America's Chuck Middleton of Port Gibson.

This is Charles Evers come full circle. Once a leading spokesman for the Democratic Party in Mississippi, its National Democratic Committee man, and a close supporter of Robert Kennedy and friend of the Kennedy family, Evers has been hob-nobbing with state Republicans the last few years. He has been so much brought to the bosom of the Mississippi Republican Party, that now he is a member of the state GOP Executive Committee and has offers of financial help in his campaign from numbers of prominent Republicans.

Somehow, the Repubs don't seem to mind that Charles had quite a sordid past that includes his days as a professional pimp, self-admitted father of several illegitimate children, and a small-time racketeer in Chicago. All this from his dark past was recited in his autobiography, Evers, published in 1971 with assistance from Grace Halsell.

In 1974, Evers was indicted by the feds for income tax evasion and tried in 1975 for failing to report more than $150,000 in income. It ended in a mistrial, even after a bizarre admission by his attorney that Evers had illegally stashed $200,000 in Chicago prior to his coming back to Mississippi in 1963.

The suspicion existed at the time of his mistrial in 1975 that the judge in the case got his marching orders from then-powerful Sen. James O. Eastland to prevent an entanglement with brer Charles, who was then a nationally recognized civil rights figure.

Despite claims by the Justice Department, then in the hands of the Republicans, Evers was never retried. Interestingly, Evers began to gravitate to the Republicans thereafter, endorsing Gerald Ford over Jimmy Carter in 1976, and backing Ronald Reagan in 1980. It was the height of incongruity when Nancy Reagan brought out her new china at the White House in 1981, and Evers was one of the first guests to eat off of it.

Evers had pulled back from the national civil rights limelight in the late-1970s, and won his first elective office as mayor of Fayette. Eventually he was unseated, but regained that job, then made an unsuccessful race for the state Senate. His candidacy as an independent for the U.S. Senate in 1978, receiving 133,000 votes, is credited by many for Thad Cochran being elected over Democrat Maurice Dantin to fill the seat vacated by Eastland.

Evers failed miserably to get black votes running as an independent candidate for governor in 1983.

No longer does Evers hold the magic with blacks across Mississippi that he held during his one-time leadership of the state NAACP after his brother was slain in 1963. In fact, when Byron De La Beckwith was retried for Medgar Evers' assassination early last year, Charles was nowhere to be seen, believed to be the wishes of Myrlie Evers.

Still having some local following, Charles won the job of Jefferson County's Chancery Clerk in 1991, and according to his free-income report for last year, he had the least net earnings of any Chancery Clerk in the state, $13,776. However, his expenses, according to his report, were proportionally higher than almost any clerk in the state. He attributes this to paying his employees well, among them his own daughter.

He got into the House District 85 race when incumbent Charles Sheppard did not run for reelection, opting to seek Evers' job as Chancery Clerk.

Evers professes to disagree with a lot of his new friends in the GOP on some issues. "I agree on some things with (Gov.) Fordice, but I'm not going to be his hand-boy (if he is elected to the Legislature)." Among the issues he doesn't see eye to eye with some fellow Republicans is on abortion. He's pro-choice.

"I've always been very conservative, except on race," he maintains. Evers coined the word "workfare" instead of welfare when he ran for Congress in the Fourth District way back in 1968.

One thing you can always say about LeGrande Charles — wherever the money is, that's where he is. Naturally, he's found his home in the Grand Old Party.

grants to build two comfort stations along the beach, perhaps some of the $420,000 the county expects to spend on that construction could be diverted to the city's sand beach project.

But chances of substantial CTA help appeared slim Monday, when the authority's executive director met with council. Ted Hearn said he has $200,000 in federal funding for such projects -- but the most the city could expect to receive would be 10 to 11 percent of that fund, proportionate to the city's participation in the overall CTA program.

CTA, said Hearn, is in a belt-tightening mode in light of federal transportation aid cutbacks. In fact, Hearn said to maintain the current level of service in Bay St. Louis, the city's annual contribution to CTA will have to increase from $45,000 to $70,000.

Hearn said the city may want to consider dropping Route 52 for lack of ridership. It's base of riders, he said, is 16 St. Stanislaus students who travel from Harrison County during school months.

"We're doing everything we can to cut the fat," said Hearn. Of Route 52, he added: "The numbers now do not reflect it is worth it to keep it going ... I'm raising my hand and saying it's not working." On some summer days, Hearn said, only three or four passengers a day board the bus.

Council asked for more data before making a decision on Route 52, and later expressed dismay that the county expects to spend $210,000 each on two comfort stations. Council member James Thriffley termed the expenditure "pie in the sky."

And council noted that citizens who live along Beach Boulevard have protested they don't want such crowd-drawing facilities anyway.

Black repeatedly asked why the city is in the position of having to build a beachfront on its own -- the county funded a 4.4-mile renourishment project last year between Washington Street in Bay St. and Dane Street in Waveland.

Favre said the Sand Beach Committee had urged that the area north of Washington Street be included in the permitting process for renourishment, but it was not.

"Their latest argument is that they didn't have enough money" for the city area at issue, Favre said of the supervisors. He added, however, the county could have paid for the project with the $500,000 it saved when the state stopped the project to save some sea grasses.

"It's election time coming up and I'd like to know," Black insisted, questioning the county's decision not to include the area between Washington and the Highway 90 bridge in the county-financed project. Thriffley said Black shouldn't attempt to make the matter "a political issue."

"Unfortunately, it could be a big political issue," said Favre, if the city has to cancel some of its most popular projects, such as the senior citizens center and ballfields, to pay for the beach project.

The city recently was awarded a $320,000 community development block grant to build a new senior citizens center -- but most come up with a $320,000 match for the project.

The ballfield project is expected to cost some $400,000, but costs of it would be spread out over several years.

There are other capital projects in the hopper as well, including a city-county effort to build a system of pedestrian and bike paths. The county's share of the $1.2 million project is $175,000, and the city's local cost is almost $124,000.

Favre said Monday it's unrealistic for the county to budget its $175,000 cost from seawall tax revenues for the coming year, because the path system won't be constructed for 18 to 24 months.

Council

That, in part, because the developers plan to draw runoff from surrounding properties, through The Oaks drainage system, to a new canal the city is planning to give relief to the entire Hancock Heights area. But until the city system is in place, there's nowhere for the new subdivision's runoff to flow, council was told.

Stieffel said while home-building will wait for the drainage improvements, developers should be allowed to do some clearing and other preliminary work on the tract. Council agreed.

A second subdivision proposal off Dunbar, backing up to Genin Street residences, was shelved temporarily by council -- drainage plugged action on those plans.

City Planning and Zoning Commission officials had recommended approval of plans to build 12 duplexes on the vacant tract, based in part on city officials' assurances that drainage improvements would be installed to deal with the existing and expected drainage problems in the area.

City Council members, however, weren't ready to accept the commission's recommendation.

Mayor Eddie Favre said while officials expect to improve drainage in the area, that project is "not at the top of the list." The Hancock Heights project, he said, is the city's primary drainage improvement project now.

Council member Charles Scianna said developer Ronnie Artigues had telephoned Scianna earlier in the day to offer several amendments to the subdivision plan, including eliminating one lot and making the development's roadway wider.

Council said they'd like to discuss those details with Artigues personally before acting on his request. They also noted that absent council member James Rutherford had requested action be postponed until the next council meeting, Aug. 9, so he could participate in the action.

Even as council was poised to postpone action, they heard from two residents of the area at issue -- and received a petition of opposition from the neighborhood.

Genin Street resident Ellis Cuevas warned that previous city decisions had spoiled drainage flow in the area. As it stands, he said, heavy rains leave the residential area inundated with waters that come within inches of homes.

"Sometimes when you do something, you can't go back and rectify it," said Cuevas, as he cited city actions that he said had worsened the drainage situation.

Council president Tad Black said the city hopes to have a grip on the problem within the next year. "...We're working on it as fast as we can," he said, adding he's opposed to the proposed development until he feels assured the drainage solution is at hand.

The bed and breakfast application concerns Michael V. Zupardo's plans for 115 Washington Street. The planning commission had recommended approval of that establishment, but only if six off-street parking spaces could be provided.

Zupardo himself said Tuesday he was doubtful the proposal would work. "I don't feel comfortable with the way the situation is ... I don't know how they'd get out," he said of cars parked in the proposed slots.

Zupardo said only with "precision parking" could motorists negotiate the tight squeeze that apparently would be necessary to accommodate six cars on the property. He said he feared that the tight maneuvering required to exit the parking slots would endanger any child to the rear of the vehicles.

The applicant said he'd check a little further to see if there's a solution to the problem. Council deferred action until Aug. 9.

Two other zoning applications were approved by council, including plans for three duplexes on a Third Street tract between Ballentine and Citizen streets. That tract is zoned for light industrial development, but the owners said commercial use of the property is impractical.

Council also approved a 2.8-foot sideyard variance for Treutel Realty for two homes to be constructed on Julia Street.

Fishing

Prizes will be awarded in the saltwater division for the largest speckled trout, redfish, white trout, flounder, croaker, ground mullet and largest fish.

"The rodeo's officials will not be responsible for undersized fish," Sam Perniciaro, club president, warned.

"No undersized fish will be accepted, and parents are urged to have their children comply with state and federal regulations (on speckled trout and redfish)," Perniciaro added.

Karl emphasized no catfish or stingrays will be accepted. "This is for the safety of the children participating," Karl added.

There will be a special crab division for ages six and under. All fish must be caught by the participants on the day of the rodeo in any waters in the area from piers, shoreline, boats or wading.

Sportman's Club members will handle the scales, and the weighmaster's decisions are final.

Each participant will also receive a free hot dog and coke, Perniciaro said.

Trophies will be given for first, second and third place in each category. Drawings will be held for a large number of prizes.

Scales will close at 5 p.m. Many of the prizes for the rodeo have been donated to the Sportsman's Club by local merchants.

USM professor helps shape state plan

A University of Southern Mississippi professor has helped design a statewide plan that could provide new programs aimed at family support and preservation.

Dr. Mike Forster, assistant professor of social work at USM, is serving on a 15-member statewide steering committee that drafted a proposed five-year plan for Mississippi.

The plan, if approved by the Atlanta office of the Department of Health and Human Services, will allow Mississippi to take advantage of funding provided through the federal Family Preservation and Services Act of 1993.

The act makes federal money available to states and designates that money be used to create new family support and preservation services. Each applying state must draft a five-year plan.

The benchmark of the Mississippi plan is development of community-based family support centers, which allow individual communities to determine its most pressing needs, Forster said.

"The plan, with its focus on community-based programs, represents a significant shift in the way things have been done in the past," he added.

"Traditional services — foster care, group homes, etc. — will continue. But this act puts emphasis on development of front-end services.

"Family support centers, which are at the heart of the plan, allow community-directed centers to be established with local boards of directors who can say 'Here are the family issues we feel are most pressing in our community and here's what we can do about it,'" Forster said.

Current family services available through departments of human services tend to kick in "when families are already in trouble," he continued, noting the act shifts emphasis to family support and funds preventive programs that provide resources, information, counseling and the like before problems occur.

The Mississippi plan "dovetails with the current (national) movement toward decentralizing services," Forster said, pointing out it also dovetails with an initiative undertaken earlier this year by the Hattiesburg Area Education Foundation.

HAEF's "Strong Families, Strong Community" has as its primary goal finding ways to better prepare area students for school. Part of the project's initial plan calls for development of a family resource center to help empower parents to help their children.

"I would think once the plan is approved and federal money becomes available, the foundation would be able to apply for a grant to fund its family resource center because it fits in nicely with what the plan outlines," said Foster, who also serves on a planning committee for the HAEP project.

The Atlanta office of HHS is expected to rule on Mississippi's proposed five-year plan by the end of the summer. The committee will remain active to monitor and evaluate implementation.

PRCC's dental hygiene course is top vo-tech program in state

Pearl River Community College's Dental Hygiene Technology course is the state's top vocational-technical program.

Selected by the Program Selection Committee of the Mississippi Office of Vocational-Technical and Adult Education, this PRCC program will now represent Mississippi in the United States Secretary of Education's Secretary's Award Program.

Dr. Therrell Myers, associate state superintendent of Mississippi's Vocational-Technical and Adult Education, said the PRCC Dental Hygiene Technology program "incorporates cutting edge educational concepts, practices and training methodologies with provision for the immediate introduction of emerging technologies."

"The Pearl River Dental Hygiene Technology Program is worthy of recognition for demonstrating excellence in the provision of instructional services and activities," said Myers.

The PRCC program, located at the college's Allied Health Center in Hattiesburg, was chosen from vocational-technical program nominations from all 15 Mississippi community and junior colleges.

"This program is one that could be replicated in other locations and is one that enhances the image of vocational-technical education," said Dr. Myers. Dr. James Sones, dean of PRCC's vocational-technical education, said 100 percent of the students graduated have completed the program and licensure requirements.

Sones said all graduates are employed and earning $15 to $18 an hour, which is one or above the salary range for the state and region. One PRCC student scored in the top three percent on the national licensure examination.

The PRCC program earned state accreditation in the fall 1992 and national accreditation in July 1994.

PRCC built the state-of-the-art Allied Health Center in 1990 at a cost of $2.7 million. The facility has an on-site clinical laboratory that provides services to the public as well as model instructional facilities including laboratories and classrooms.

Myers said the program maintains strong articulation among secondary, postsecondary and adult vocational-technical education. "There are also strong visible ties established and maintained with business, industry and the community," said Myers.

Dr. Stan Hill, director of PRCC's dental programs, said local dental hygienists and dentists supply representation on the advisory/craft committees. They also participate in guest lectures and extramural experiences for students in their offices or location.

Registered dental hygienist Gina Fitzgerald from Hattiesburg is a member of the PRCC faculty who assists Hill.

Hill said PRCC students have participated in health fairs, tours and visits to industry, business and labor sites.

"Our students have conducted oral hygiene education and instruction to a senior center, area nursing home and employee staff development program," said Hill. The program provided five in-service activities for teachers/counselors and administrators.

Hill said the curriculum includes content in general academic education, biomedical science, dental and dental hygiene science.

Of the 60 students accepted into the program, 42 percent were single parents and 50 percent were first generation college students. The college accepts 15 students each year.

"First generation means the first person of a family to attend college," said Hill. "Eighty-three percent of the students enrolled have been over the age of 23."

Records show 58 percent of the students are classified as being from low-income families.

"This program is fulfilling a health care need in the community and providing a better way of life for the graduates," said Hill.

Crime prevention funding available

Mississippi incorporated municipalities and other governmental units which implement programs serving more than one jurisdiction will be eligible for $6 million in federal funds to combat crime, according to the Mississippi Division of Public Safety Planning.

This one-year funding, provided by House Bill 1703 which was passed by the 1995 Legislature and signed by the governor, will be available on a per capita basis, with a $500,000 maximum, July 1.

It may be used for crime prevention projects such as law enforcement, obtaining equipment, training and meeting state or federal crime prevention requirements.

"I commend Gov. Fordice and the Legislature for this impressive evidence of their concern about Mississippi's crime problems and Public Safety's Division of Public Safety Planning for its leadership in administering this program," said Commissioner of Public Safety Jim Ingram. "By helping to combat crime at the local level, as well as the state level, this funding sends a clear message to criminals in every area of Mississippi that there's no easy target, that our state is serious about crime prevention."

Donald O'Cain, Public Safety Planning's executive director, noted that "municipalities generally understand their crime prevention needs and how to effectively meet these needs better than state and federal agencies. The governor and Legislature have demonstrated their understanding of this fact in making the funding of local projects a key provision of House Bill 1703."

Information packets and fund request forms have been provided to all eligible entities, but if needed, additional information may be obtained by contacting Steven Njemanze, Public Safety Planning program manager, at 359-7880.

Yanez, a Fellow of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology, will discuss how to detect cancer through self-examination and mammography. His research includes statistics on risk factors and types of treatment.

The community education seminar is sponsored by Hancock Medical Center. Each person attending will receive a coupon for $10 off the price of a screening mammogram.

A question-and-answer period and light refreshments will follow. For additional information, call 466-3391.

Consumer confidence dips during first quarter

The Mississippi Consumer Confidence Index remained relatively stable during the first quarter of 1995. The first quarter of 1995 index, covering the periods of January through March, dropped 0.8 percent to 118.

The most recent Mississippi Consumer Confidence Survey, conducted April 3-6, reveals that Mississippi consumer's confidence remained stable over the first quarter of 1995, dropping 0.8 percent to 118 from the record setting level of 119 posted in the quarter immediately prior.

Despite the slight drop, three of the five districts had higher confidence index levels.

Mississippi employment data shows total employment down 0.9 percent in the first quarter of 1995 from the last quarter of 1994, although seasonally adjusted employment was up over the same time period. Retail sales remained virtually steady over the first quarter of 1995, dropping 0.8 percent from the last quarter of 1994.

Continued high levels of consumer optimism is probably associated with continued strong levels of employment. Retail sales should bounce back from the post-Christmas retrenching position consumers usually take.

Optimism fell for three of five questions asked on the survey.

Consumers are less optimistic about personal finances but more optimistic about business conditions. Those questions in which consumers reflected less optimism asked about their current financial situation compared to a year ago, expected change in financial situation and buying conditions for large household goods.

The questions reflecting rising optimism asked about business conditions expected during the next 12 months and business conditions expected during the next five years.

For comparison purposes, the U.S. index of consumer confidence rose during the first quarter of 1995 from the fourth quarter of 1994. This rise was broad based, with only attitudes concerning buying conditions for large household goods falling.

District Five's (which includes Hancock County) consumer confidence index rose to 115 during the first quarter of 1995 from the fourth quarter of 1994. This represented a 5.5 percent increase from the level of 109 posted during the fourth quarter of 1994.

While decreased optimism was shown in areas of personal finances, increased rates of optimistic answers were seen in areas of business conditions and buying conditions for large household goods.

Total sales fell 1.9 percent in the first quarter of 1995 from the fourth quarter of 1994. Seven of 11 counties experienced a drop in sales.

St. Paul Seafood fest

The beaches and Mississippi Sound (left) provided an idyllic setting while for the more adventurous, the fair offered several thrilling rides (right). However, there were even more sedate rides for the younger set above).

A tent provided much needed relief from the heat, and a relatively cool place in which to enjoy the many seafood delicacies.

Various bands provided some foot-stompin', dance-till-you-drop music.

Anyone looking for a little excitement only had to ride one of the several fair rides.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. The Turtle finally figured out why it has been so hard to find live shrimp for bait the past few weeks. The lack of live shrimp on a regular basis has caused some fishermen to fish with unappetizing plastic and metal baits.

The use of plastic and metal baits has created a severe hardship on area fishermen. No one has been able to come forth with a recipe to cook the plastic and metal baits if you can't catch any fish. I mean how can you eat your bait if no one has been able to come up with a recipe to make the bait appetizing?

Let's see, I started out by saying the Turtle found out why there is a shortage of live shrimp in the area. The reason for the shortage is all of the area hardware store have run out of the blue sprout 000001 hooks needed to catch live shrimp.

The Turtle is not sure, but he thinks they also ran out of bait for the 000001 blue sprout shrimp hooks.

Other than the shortage of shrimp hooks, another reason for the shortage of live shrimp is the season for brown shrimp is closed in Louisiana because of the appearance of juvenile white shrimp. The white shrimp season should open real soon-like, and live bait shrimp should be available in quantity.

In the meantime, the Turtle recommends you telephone the bait sellers the day before you plan to buy your supply of live shrimp.

Before I go on to the fishing report I gotta say the area hospitals have thanked the Turtle for his column on how to create the pulsating yellow and red lights by driving a flounder spear through the foot of your partner while founder fishing.

It seems the sudden appearance of a person with a flounder spear through the foot gets the attention of hospital emergency room personnel and keeps them active during the normally slow period at night.

Anyway, the fishing buddies should be aware of the sudden appearance of a sunken 40- to 50-foot boat around the nine-mile beacon over in the Louisiana Marsh. It seems this boat developed holes in its bottom as large as the holes in its topside.

The holes limited the ability of the boat to keep out water from between the topside and the bottomside, which culminated in the boat deciding to rest its bottom side on the bottom. In other words, it sank.

If you don't want a hole in the bottomside of your boat to match the hole on the topside of your boat you might wanna keep an eye out for the sunken boat in the nine-mile beacon area so you can't let it inspect the bottom of your boat. It is a long swim back to the landing from the nine-mile beacon area.

In case the fishin' buddies think the Turtle will never get to the point (as usual) let me tell ya, the fish are just about jumping in the boat in the Louisiana Marsh. Most boats are coming back with their Louisiana limit of trout from the Marsh. The best producing area, in terms of numbers of fish, is still the area around Grand Pass.

The area that is producing the largest size trout are the Puffer Keys. If you decide to fish the Puffer Keys area you should be prepared to catch a lot of half trout. The black-tip sharks have moved into the Puffer Keys area big-time plenty, and it seems they just love to bite the back half off of the trout fishermen are catching.

Reports are coming in of some really big red fish being caught by the mouth of the Pearl River. LaFrance reported one fisherman came in with a red that went 62 pounds that was caught fishin' on the bottom right in the mouth of the Pearl. They report there has been a steady stream of "keeper" size reds that have been caught in the same area all week long.

Half Moon and Grassy Islands are now home to some nice catches of speckled trout in the school-size range.

This is a good time to talk about school-size trout. The Commission on Marine Resources will decide this week if they are gonna follow the recommendation of Fred Deegen of DMR and do away with the current provision of allowing the retention of five trout 12 inches long to be kept as part of your creel limit. They are also gonna decide if the current creel limit of 25 trout will be reduced to a daily limit of 10.

One last thing. The saltwater fishing license expired on June 30. It is time to get a new saltwater fishing license.

This week's wonderful wise words: Take care to put hull bottom inspectors out of work.

Do you think cookin' plastic bait in cayenne pepper would help the taste of plastic bait, Turtle?

Low water conditions change fishing techniques

Whenever former world bass fishing champion Ken Cook finds low water conditions on his favorite lake, he immediately begins using what he calls his "search baits," because he knows the fish will be harder to locate.

"Low water normally makes specific cover like stumps and brush harder to find because all the shallow shoreline cover is out of the water," explains the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler. "It concentrates the bass on offshore structure which is not only deeper but often more scattered."

"The bass are usually more spooky in low water, so you're forced to make much longer casts. That's why I use search baits."

Search baits for Cook consist primarily of crankbaits and

Bassin' with the pros

spinnerbaits, and he's using them to look for specific cover as much as to locate bass.

"I like a deep running crankbait that may run into a stump or treetop 10 or 12 feet deep that I can't see, and I'll flutter a spinnerbait down nearly as deep to see what else I can find," he explains.

"Then, if I do hit something with either of the lures, I usually fish it much more carefully with a finesse technique like a

if the water is falling as he's fishing, the Evinrude pro may concentrate his search near the ends of points, along steep banks, or around creek channels that swing close to a shallow shoreline.

"Points are always worth fishing in falling or low water because the bass follow them out as the water level drops," Cook explains. "Points attract a lot of baitfish anytime so the bass like to move up and down them to feed, and even during low or falling water conditions the bass will still utilize them." "Steep banks and channels that swing close to a shoreline are also attractive to bass because the effects of low water are not as drastic. Along steep banks bass tend to suspend, so as the water level drops they simply go deeper with it.

"Creek channels also offer deep water safety when water levels fall," continues Cook. "Creeks offer the combination of deep water very close to shallow water, so even if the shallow water disappears, the bass still have the creek itself."

Because bass tend to become spooky when water levels fall, Cook takes care not to frighten them further. He keeps his boat on the edge of his fishing area and makes longer than usual casts.

"With a crankbait, making long casts is not unusual," he smiles. "In low water, the lure just has a dual role. I want it to catch bass, but I also want it to search for the cover the bass may be using."

Davis wins Sun Coast Late Model Sportsman feature

BY MELVIN BRELAND

Mike Ladner broke his own track record at Sun Coast Speedway when he won the pole position.

K.I. Davis timed in second, placing him alongside Ladner for the Late Model Sportsman feature.

Ladner and Davis led the 14-car field to the green flag with both charging hard into the number one corner, but it was Davis coming out of the second turn first.

The 41 four and four Q cars were involved in a spin bringing out the caution on the first lap. Ladner suffered a flat tire, which he was able to change under the caution, but in going to the pits he had to fall in on the rear for the restart.

Everyone remained in for the restart as Davis led Tracy Brown and Ben Davis for the first part of the race. Ladner started picking off the rest of the field as he worked his way back to the second spot with four laps remaining on a restart.

On the restart, Ladner quickly got by the lap car to give chase to Davis. Although Ladner managed to catch Davis on the final two laps, he was unable to challenge Davis for the lead. Brown held on to the third spot. Ben Davis had to settle for fourth.

Earlier Heat wins went to Mitchell Williams and Boogie Obiol.

Jamie Luzenberg and Bubba McQueen led the 14-car Pro Stock lineup to the green flag. Luzenberg claimed the lead on the start and was never headed as he went flag to flag for the win.

McQueen was able to hold on to the second spot, but Gary Joiner lost the third spot to Ronnie Roberts.

Donald Parker and Wallace Allen finished behind Joiner. Allen and Larry Orr both won earlier Heat races.

In the Four-Cylinder Modified Division, Jamie Farve also went flag to flag from his front row starting position. Nick Sellier was second before going in with mechanical problems.

Jimmy Necais and Marus Jacobs were racing wheel to wheel for the second spot before Jacobs got out of shape in Turn One, resulting in a head-on with another car.

Jacobs had to be taken to the pits with damage to his car. This moved Necais in behind Farve for a second place finish. Kalif Sellier worked his way into the third spot to round out the top three. Necais won the Heat race.

The A-Maine in the Street Stock class went to Chuckie Smith over Johnny Willis and Rodney Barber. Barber managed to work his way to third from several rows back for one of his better finishes.

The B-Maine appeared to go to Willie Marin and Terry Cuevas, but both failed to clear teck and were DQed moving David Hough into the top spot.

Mark Pritchett and Bobby Obarr rounded out the top three. Heat wins went to Jerry Winstead, Mark Pritchett and Joe Schaultman.

A.J. Kronhold of P.J. Barnes and Ryan Ladner in the Rookie class. Allen Kilpatrick took the top spot in the Heat race.

Next week's program will feature the four-cylinder Modified class with $1,000 added to the regular purse.

The 25th annual Race for the Case took place on Sunday, July 16 at the Biloxi Yacht Club.

United States Representative Gené Taylor took top honors with his 32-foot Endeavor named the Calabazita.

Taylor skippered the boat while his crew included his daughter Sarah, Charlie Merrigan, and Carey Trapani. Taylor commented, "This is a race that I had never won before. My father-in-law and brother-in-law have won it as did my neighbor Steve Benvenuti."

Make informed choices with flowering options

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Bedding plant displays in garden centers look like patchwork quilts of color at this time of year. The immediate effect is dazzling. The effect on the beginning gardener can be overwhelming.

Standing in the middle of a bedding plant display, imagine the plight of the new gardener, the first time homeowner who up to this point has never had to pick out flowers to plant. Until now they've just admired what apartment owners or landscape services have planted.

Some people don't know an annual from a perennial, a sun-loving plant or a shade-loving plant or a cool weather snapdragon from a hot weather celosia. All they know is they want something colorful that looks good. Understanding flowering plants can ensure appropriate choices for landscape colors.

Annuals are plants that grow and flower for one season, and frost kills them in the fall. Annuals that are flowering when purchased generally continue to flower until cold weather arrives in the fall.

Some flowering annuals, such as marigolds, salvia, dahlia and zinnias, need to have the old flowers picked off to keep the plants producing new flowers.

Perennials are plants that return year after year. They are winter hardy. Most perennials do not provide continuous color in the garden. They have a time of flowering and the rest of the growing season have green leaves.

in Mississippi Gardens

Some perennials such as salvia, a few of the daylilies and veronicas are repeat bloomers while most are not. Most provide color only for a few weeks out of the year. By selecting from perennials that bloom in spring, others that bloom in summer and a third group that bloom in fall, you can have something in flower most of the time. The result won't be the continuous mass display provided by the annuals.

The tags in the plant containers provide information on plant height, whether the plants need sun or shade and in many cases whether the plant is an annual or perennial.

Petunias, impatiens, marigolds, vinca, cockscomb, ageratum and coleus are all annuals. Gardeners grow coleus for its colorful leaves and not its flowers. Petunias need sun; impatiens need shade. Sun-loving plants stop flowering when placed in the shade. Plants needing shade burn when planted in the sun.

Annual red salvia comes in several plant heights. When young, all the plants look alike, but one variety gets 24 inches tall while another gets only 10 inches tall. Check the labels before purchasing plants. Some impatiens get about 16 inches tall, but most remain shorter.

Impatiens come in colors and shades ranging from pure white, through all types of pinks, rose, reds and violets. You won't see them in blue or yellow.

Cool weather annuals on sale now are near the end of their flowering time. Pansies generally die in the heat of summer. Snapdragons also are cool weather plants and suffer in heat. Both these plants do better when planted in the fall for early spring flowering.

Marigolds are yellow, orange and bronze in color. They don't come in reds, blues or pinks. Check the label for plant height. You'll have to pick off the dead flowers to keep marigolds flowering.

Petunias come in just about every color. They look great in early summer, but have a tendency to slow down in mid-summer. Rejuvenate the plants by cutting them back and lightly fertilizing.

If you aren't sure about your annuals and perennials, pick up a copy of Extension publication 1826, Annual and Perennial Flowers for Mississippi Gardens at your county Extension office.

The rewards of organic gardening

Have you always wished for a healthful, beautiful garden? You can learn how to grow one on Saturday, July 29 at 10 a.m. at The Crosby Arboretum.

Julia and Allen Anderson run an organic farm in Pearl River County, plus develop and maintain superb gardens for many satisfied clients in the area. The Andersons will offer methods to reduce the use of pesticide while increasing productivity.

Many of their techniques are especially adapted to our unique growing conditions. The class fee is $5 for Arboretum members and $8 for non-members, reservations by July 27.

Organic Gardening is the first of a four-part gardening series offered by The Crosby Arboretum. Other classes offered are Frances Welden:

Attracting Butterflies with Native Plants on Aug. 26; Becky Henopp: Plant Propagation, Sept. 16; and Gail Barton: Planting Perennials, Oct. 5. Register for all four and receive a 20 percent discount.

Take steps to reduce effects of allergies

By Dr. Wynn Jones
Veterinarian
MSU College of Veterinary Medicine

"Not long ago I was given a kitten by a friend who decided I needed some feline companionship. It's a beautiful, healthy kitten and is growing by leaps and bounds. My friend was right. I am enjoying my new cat very much. There's one slight problem — I think I may be allergic to my cat. I never knew I was allergic to cats. I can't bear to part with the kitten, but I have to do something. Do you have any ideas?"

Allergies can be tricky to deal with, but there are ways to diminish their severity. You even may fall into a group of people who are simply allergic to new cats. This type of allergy means it will diminish with repeated exposure, and you should not be allergic to cats you are exposed to regularly.

You can become allergic to your own cat if you are away from it for an extended period of time. Washing your hands often can help with this type of allergy.

Several things can help reduce the effects of the allergy. Keep the cat out of your bedroom and off the furniture as much as possible.

Ask your veterinarian or pet shop for particular products to apply to your cat's fur to dissolve some of the dander and protein from the saliva that causes the allergy.

Clean and vacuum your house often, and regularly groom and brush the cat outside so the hair shed around the house is minimal.

Other people are allergic to the saliva on the cat's fur. A remedy for this is to bathe the cat once a month. No soap is needed — merely soak the cat thoroughly. Done on a monthly basis, it seems to keep the saliva levels tolerable.

You could go to an allergy

specialist and get shots to help you with specific allergies. This can be expensive but worth it, especially if you have other allergies.

The doctor will test you for the things you may be allergic to. Depending on your allergies, you may be given periodic shots to help you develop an appropriate immunity to them. Be sure to find a specialist familiar with cat allergies. Some will simply recommend you get rid of the cat.

Don't expect miracles. Specialists can do a lot to reduce your allergies, but sometimes they can't track down a particular one. Sometimes it takes more than just shots to deal with an allergy. Good luck!

"My dog, an 8-year-old mixed breed, has been squinting a lot, and his eyes seem excessively watery. His eyes do not appear injured. What could be wrong with him?"

Squinting and tearing indicate your dog's eyes are irritated in some way. The possible causes of eye irritation are many and may include corneal ulcers or abrasions, the turning inward of the eyelid, foreign material in the eye and even extra eyelashes that are rubbing the eye.

Eye injuries require immediate attention to prevent discomfort and further irreversible damage to the eye. Have your veterinarian examine your dog's eyes as soon as possible so proper treatment may be started.

If you have questions concerning a pet's health, contact Dr. Wynn Jones, MSU/CVM, Box 9825, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Clean out your freezer food drive

Mississippi Sportsmen Against Hunger, the hunter-sponsored food collection agency, announced that its 2nd Annual Clean Out Your Freezer Food Drive will be held at the Trade Mart in Jackson during the Mississippi Wildlife Federation's Outdoor Extravaganza, Aug. 4-6. Hunters are encouraged to donate remaining deer and other game meat, canned goods and other food stuffs to benefit charities all over the state.

"According to a 1993 USDA report on hunger in America, over 33 percent of the children in Mississippi are malnourished," said Bob Wilson, Jackson attorney and founder of the group. "By donating deer meat and other food stuffs at the Clean Out Your Freezer Food Drive, hunters can feed these hungry kids as we promote hunting."

The group also announced expansion of its deer meat collection program to include all 82 counties in Mississippi.

"For the last two hunting seasons, we have accepted donations of unprocessed deer meat at collection centers in 35 counties throughout the state," said T. Logan Russell, president of the non-profit group that has collected over 50,000 pounds of pure venison.

"This year will will again accept unprocessed deer meat at our collection centers, but we will also encourage hunters to donate processed deer meat to any charity in Mississippi," Russell added. "Rather than serving this meat to the hungry, the charities will hand it out."

Participating hunters will have their MSAH donor card signed by the collection center or charity receiving the donation. Hunters will mail the cards in at the end of hunting season and be entered in an all-expense paid elk and mule deer hunt next fall.

The cards will be available at hunting stores throughout the state beginning Oct. 1.

For additional information call 1-800-777-5001.

Wild Horse and Burro Expo coming to Mississippi

The U.S. Department of the Interior's Bureau of Land Management (BLM) will sponsor a Wild Horse & Burro (WH&B) Expo at the Mississippi State Fairgrounds in Jackson Aug. 11-12.

About 100 wild horses and 50 burros will be offered by the BLM for adoption to qualified individuals who agree to give them good homes.

The non-refundable adoption fees are $125 per horse and $75 per burro. General admission is free. Hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m. A WH&B Clinic will be held at the adoption site Thursday, Aug. 10 from 5-6:30 p.m.

The BLM's Jackson District will be hosting its first-ever All Mustang Show on Saturday, Aug. 12 starting at 7:30 a.m. Competitions will be able to choose from 35 diverse classes, including halter, western pleasure, English pleasure, barrels and other fun running events. All proceeds will be donated to the Mississippi Animal Rescue League and will be designated for Equine Cruelty Cases.

Ribbons will be awarded to the first six places in each event. Following the Mustang Show, there will be an All Breeds Feed Show, comprised of running and fun events. One hundred pounds of feed will be given to first place; 50 pounds to each place — up to five places. Entry fees for both shows will be $3 per class.

BLM's Eastern States director, Carson W. Culp Jr. said the WH&B adoption program is the federal government's way of maintaining a balance between the wild animals, native wildlife and domestic animals grazing on fragile western range lands.

"The BLM has management responsibility for 270 million acres of the national's public lands, most of which are located in the 11 western states," said Culp. "To help maintain an ecological balance and preserve mustangs and burros as 'living legends,' BLM gathers and offers them for adoption. Qualified individuals may adopt up to four animals in a 12-month period.

The WH&B Adoption Program began in 1973 to control the increasing populations of horses on federal lands. Prior to the late 1950's 'mustangers' — people who preyed upon the wild horses — cruelly rounded them up and sold them for slaughter. But in 1971 Congress passed the Wild Free-Roaming Horse and Burro Act — a law that protects the animals from extinction and preserves them as 'living symbols of the historic and pioneer spirit of the West.'

Under federal protection, and because there aren't any natural predators, the wild horse herds have rapidly increased. They have to compete for limited forage and water with native wildlife and domestic livestock that also graze public lands.

In 1973, the government began removing excess numbers of wild horses in order to achieve designated herd management levels. As part of this management activity, the BLM established the WH&B Adoption Program and made the animals available to people who agree to give them good homes.

The non-refundable adoption fee helps recover some of the government's expense for transportation and veterinary care of the animals. Before shipping, every animal rounded up by BLM is thoroughly checked by a veterinarian. Coggins tested and vaccinated for various equine disorders.

Adopters are required to provide: 12x12 feet of adequate shelter; 20x20 feet of coral space; sturdy fencing 6 feet high; 5 feet for burros. To transport the animal(s) from the adoption, the adopter must have a solid constructed horse trailer with a covered top and side-wing back gates (drop ramps are not permitted) along with halters and lead ropes. BLM contract crews sort, halter and load the animal(s) onto the adopter's trailer.

Application forms may be obtained from BLM Jackson District Office, 411 Briarwood Drive, Suite 404, Jackson, MS 39206 or call (601) 977-5430.

Elks tourney set

The Bay-Waveland Elks Lodge 2776 will celebrate its third anniversary since its institution in August 1992 by hosting its first four-all golf tournament, which will be open to all golfers with an established handicap.

The tourney will be at the Pass Christian Isles Golf Club Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 26-27, with tee times beginning at 10:30 a.m. each day.

Deadline for entries is Aug. 18.

The two-person low ball tournament will be pre-flighted according to the lower handicap of the two partners. The field will be limited to the first 60 teams to submit their fees and handicaps.

Entry fee is $100 per player, which includes two days of golf with carts, prizes and social activities. Prizes will be awarded in each flight, as well as longest drive each day and closest to the hole on certain holes.

Non-golfers may participate in the social activities at a cost of $20 per person.

On Aug. 26, Casino Magic is honoring all participants and spouses or dates with a social at Torgy's, as well as other gifts from the casino. After Golf on Sunday there will be a cook-out at the club with awarding of prizes.

Net proceeds will go toward supporting the many charitable events to which Elks are dedicated.

For information contact Gene Woodruff at 466-3929 or 1-800-341-3929.

FREE Report Reveals the 10 Biggest Mistakes Retirees Make, And How to Avoid Them!

A local retirement expert has just published a report that explains the ten biggest mistakes people make when they retire, and how to avoid them.

He cited an example of a couple who took their retirement and had to eventually move in with their children because they literally ran out of money.

Another woman had to pay over $29,000 in needless income taxes because she made a seemingly small mistake with the choices she made at retirement. Obviously, the mistake wasn't small!

Retirement is a point in your life that doesn't allow the luxury of time to make up for mistakes. Once you've reached that age, you have little or no room for "trial and error" methods of taking care of your money.

Accordingly, the retirement expert has prepared a FREE report called, "The Ten Biggest Mistakes People Make When Retiring and How To Avoid Them" and how to stop using "trial and error" as your main technique of retirement financial management.

The report is available by calling 1-800-269-5154, 24 hours, for a FREE recorded message to get your FREE copy of the 12 page report.

Partners for Stennis visit Washington D.C.

Partners for Stennis, a group of business and civic leaders from Hancock, Pearl River and Harrison counties in Mississippi and St. Tammany Parish, La., recently traveled to Washington, D.C. to meet with legislators from Mississippi and Louisiana.

The purpose was to better inform the legislators of ongoing efforts of Partners in promoting the activities of the 23 federal and state organizations, including NASA and the U.S. Navy's world-class oceanographic community, located at the John C. Stennis Space Center.

Leading the group were David Treutel Jr. of Bay St. Louis and Irma Cry of Slidell, chairman and vice-chair, respectively.

Materials made available to the legislators included a brochure recently produced by Partners which spotlights both large and small companies from Mississippi, Louisiana and other states that have benefitted directly from the assistance and expertise that exist at Stennis Space Center.

These companies have worked with SSC to identify how technology can assist in a wide array of areas, including prenatal care, coffee harvesting, detecting electrical power line encroachment, and environmental monitoring of the Gulf of Mexico and surrounding waters for fisheries prediction studies.

Some of the businesses who have benefitted from Stennis technology include Bectel, Community Coffee Company, Gulf Weather Corporation, Summit Environmental Inc., Mississippi Power Co., and Jason Collins, MD.

The group also discussed the benefits to their communities of the Navy's supercomputing capabilities at SSC, which are among the best in the nation. Over 23 percent of the world's supercomputing capability is located at Stennis Space Center.

Other members of the Partners group participating in the Congressional visit included Allen Goff, Picayune; Cindy Vernon, Bay St. Louis; Jon Ritten, Diamondhead; David Mauffray, Gulfport; Marc Bonis, New Orleans; and Dr. Jason Collins, Slidell.

Partners for Stennis evolved as the result of mutual concerns by business and community leaders to support and enhance the development of the numerous programs located at Stennis Space Center and to serve as a resource group to those that might have the potential to relocate at the center.
